

More Than Just a Place to Sleep

written by Michelle Marie Arean | Posted on May 5th, 2015

The Hilton Anatole showcases an extensive collection of art pieces throughout the property.

For the art aficionados, The Hilton Anatole in Dallas is equal parts hotel and museum, as it houses an extensive collection of art and antiques. "We're honored to house one of the largest collections of art of any U.S. hotel, which is thoughtfully displayed through our relationship with the Crow Collection of Asian Art throughout our public spaces, guestrooms and Sculpture Park to be enjoyed by art enthusiasts and casual observers alike," says Kavin Schieferdecker, director of sales and marketing. The collection includes pieces that have been in the palaces of kings, emperors, and czars. Guests can log in to antoleart.com on their cell phones or tablets to get a walking tour of the hotel's 100 most iconic pieces; take a 1 Mile Art Walk; go on an Art Scavenger Hunt, which is also a great option for those traveling with kids; or experience The Anatole Art Dine-Around, which pairs 15 of the most iconic art pieces on the property with savory food and beverage items from their country of origin.

Kicking off Memorial Day Weekend, the property will offer its Summer at the Anatole offerings, which is a full schedule of family-fun activities such as lawn games in the hotel's 7-acre park, dive-in poolside movies, stay fit classes and more; cook-outs will also be offered at an additional cost. This package can be combined with the Stay & See Dallas package, which includes daily breakfast for four, in-room movies with popcorn and candy, and complimentary in-room WiFi. Room rates start at $159 per night, and the Stay & See Dallas package starts at $144 per night, offering guests approximately $100 daily savings with included amenities. For more information, call (214) 748-1200 or visit hiltonanatolehotel.com.